A Witness of Joyful Faith and Compassionate Service

Saint Pier Giorgio Frassati was a remarkable Italian Catholic layman whose short life left an enduring legacy of faith, service, and youthful zeal. Born on April 6, 1901, in Turin, Italy, to a wealthy but non-religious family, Pier Giorgio stood out for his deep devotion to Christ and his tireless love for the poor.

Despite being raised in a home indifferent to religion—his father, Alfredo, was a prominent journalist and senator, and his mother, Adelaide, a well-known painter—Pier Giorgio developed a strong Catholic faith early in life. He was profoundly devoted to the Eucharist and the Saint Virgin Mary, receiving special permission to take daily Communion and often spending nights in Eucharistic adoration.

At just 17, he joined the St. Vincent de Paul Society, where he began a lifelong mission of serving the sick, the poor, and the abandoned. He often gave away his own clothes, money, and even bus fare to help those in need, believing that in serving them, he was serving Christ Himself. His spiritual life was nourished by daily Mass, praying the Rosary, and reading the works of saints like St. Catherine of Siena.

An energetic and joyful young man, Pier Giorgio was also an avid mountaineer, skier, and hiker. He used these outings as opportunities for fellowship and prayer, inspiring others with his motto:

“Verso l’Alto” – “To the heights” – reflecting both his love for the mountains and his desire for holiness.

Frassati was also politically engaged, opposing Fascism in Italy and actively participating in Catholic Action and the Third Order of St. Dominic, where he took the name Girolamo, honoring the reformer Girolamo Savonarola.

Though he came from privilege, Pier Giorgio lived with humility and simplicity. He studied mining engineering at the Royal Polytechnic of Turin with the goal of serving Christ among the working class. Sadly, while serving the poor in Turin’s slums, he contracted polio and died on July 4, 1925, at the age of 24.

At his funeral, thousands of the poor and sick whom he had helped came to pay their respects, surprising his own family, who had been unaware of the full extent of his hidden charity. His body was found incorrupt in 1981 and was later moved to Turin’s cathedral.

On May 20, 1990, Pope John Paul II beatified him, calling him the “Man of the Eight Beatitudes.” Frassati is now the patron of youth, students, mountaineers, and World Youth Day pilgrims. He is scheduled to be canonized on September 7, 2025, by Pope Leo XIV during the Catholic Jubilee Year.

Today, Saint Pier Giorgio Frassati continues to inspire young Catholics around the world with his joyful witness to the Gospel—calling all to climb toward the heights of holiness with courage, love, and unwavering faith.

Prayer for Saint Pier Giorgio Frassati

Heavenly Father, give us the courage to strive for the highest goals, to flee every temptation to be mediocre. Enable us to aspire to greatness, as Pier Giorgio did, and to open our hearts in joy to your call to holiness. Free us from the fear of failure.

We want to be, Lord, firmly and forever united to you. Grant us the graces we ask thee through Saint Pier Giorgio Frassati’s intercession, by the merits of our Lord Jesus Christ. Amen.

Saint Pier Giorgio Frassati (1901–1925)

1 A Life of Faith and Service

Saint Pier Giorgio Frassati (1901–1925) was an Italian Catholic activist whose deep faith, selfless service to the poor, and vibrant spirituality continue to inspire young Catholics world- wide. His life, marked by joy and dedication to Christ, earned him the title “Man of the Eight Beatitudes” from Pope John Paul II.

1.1 Early Life and Spiritual Foundation

Born on April 6, 1901, in Turin, Italy, Frassati grew up in a wealthy, agnostic family. His father, Alfredo, owned the influential newspaper La Stampa and served as a senator, while his mother, Adelaide, was a painter. Despite his parents’ lack of religious enthusiasm, Frassati cultivated a profound Catholic faith from a young age. Drawn to the Eucharist and the Saint Virgin Mary, he received rare permission for daily Communion and spent countless nights in Eucharistic adoration.

1.2 Charity Rooted in Christ

At age 17, Frassati joined the St. Vincent de Paul Society, dedicating himself to serving Turin’s poor, sick, and orphaned.

He gave away his money, clothes, and even bus fare, often walking home to keep his generosity hidden from his family. His charity was deeply rooted in his belief that serving the needy was serving Christ, inspired by daily Mass, the Rosary, and the writings of saints like Catherine of Siena.

1.3 Verso l’Alto: Mountains and Faith

An avid mountaineer and athlete, Frassati loved hiking, skiing, and climbing in the Italian Alps. These outings were opportunities to lead friends in prayer, blending his love for nature with his faith. His motto, “Verso l’Alto” (“To the heights”), reflected both his passion for mountaineering and his spiritual aspiration toward heaven, making him a relatable figure for youth seeking to live faith actively.

1.4 Activism and Conviction

Frassati was politically engaged, opposing Fascism in Italy through his involvement in Catholic Action and the Third Order of St. Dominic, where he took the name Girolamo, honouring the reformer Savonarola. His faith-driven activism showcased his courage and commitment to justice in a turbulent era.

1.5 Sacrifice and Final Days

Frassati studied mining engineering at the Royal Polytechnic of Turin, intending to serve Christ among miners. Tragically, he contracted polio, likely from his work in Turin’s slums, and died on July 4, 1925, at age 24. His funeral drew thousands, mostly the poor he had served, revealing the extent of his charity to his unaware family. In 1981, his body was found incorrupt and moved to Turin’s cathedral, a testament to his sanctity.

1.6 Beatification and Canonization

Beatified by Pope John Paul II in 1990, Frassati was celebrated as the “Man of the Eight Beati- tudes” for embodying the Gospel’s call to holiness. A patron of youth, students, mountaineers, and World Youth Day, he is set to be canonized on September 7, 2025, by Pope Leo XIV during the Jubilee Year.

2 Legacy of Joy and Inspiration

Pier Giorgio Frassati’s life was a testament to living joyfully for Christ. His blend of charity, faith, and enthusiasm for life continues to inspire countless young people to pursue holiness in everyday actions. Through his service to the poor, love for the mountains, and unwavering commitment to justice, Frassati’s legacy calls us all to strive “Verso l’Alto”—toward the heights of faith and love.
